

After Your Course

Once you have successfully completed your course, you will be able to fly pretty much wherever you want, and enjoy a level of flying freedom that only a helicopter can give you.

To maintain your pilots status you will need to complete 2 hours solo flying each year, and you can do this easily with Rise. Our helicopters are available for exclusive hire so you can keep flying using the same aircraft that you used for your training.

Trial Lessons

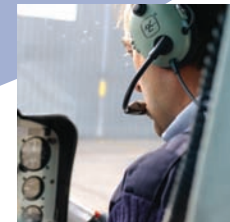

If you are interested in learning to fly but have never flown a helicopter before and would like to know what is involved, why not book a trial lesson? Ask us for a copy of our Flight Gift Vouchers leaflet.

Private Pilots Licence (Helicopters) Course

Helicopter flying is the ultimate in flexible travel, so at Rise Helicopters we think it is important that this flexibility is reflected in your training course.

Our Helicopter Private Pilots Licence (PPL(H)) Course is designed around your particular needs and timetable. You can learn to fly from scratch or build on skills you have already acquired. We can train you through an intensive full-time course, or via segments designed to fit into your schedule. It is entirely up to you.

You can learn in a two-seater Robinson R22 or a four-seater Robinson R44. The pilot instructor assigned to you will remain with you for the duration of your course, providing a thorough grounding in theory with plenty of flight practice. This one-to-one support means you can build a friendly and productive partnership so that you feel completely at ease with every aspect of your journey towards fully fledged pilot status.

Course Components

In the Air

- A minimum of 45 hours flight time. If you already have a Private Pilots Aeroplane Licence you may be credited with up to six hours towards your helicopter licence, depending on how many flying hours you have.
- Ten solo flight hours within the 45 hours, including five hours of cross-country flying.
- One solo flight within the ten hours must cover more than 100 nautical miles and must include landing at two aerodromes along the way.

Theory

Your course will cover the following subjects:

- Aviation Law and Operational Procedures
- Aircraft General Knowledge and Principles of Flight
- Flight Performance and Planning
- Navigation
- Meteorology
- Performance and Limitations
- Radiotelephony

The likelihood is that you will learn about these through a combination of training from your pilot instructor and self study at home. You tell us your preferred method of learning and we will ensure that you are equipped for the multiple-choice tests that you will need to pass in each area as part of your qualification. You can obtain all the books and supplies you need from us.
